

WC, says Guardiola

MANCHESTER, MAY 7

Pep Guardiola believes Gareth Southgate would be taking a risk if he did not name Fabian Delph in England's World Cup squad after an impressive season from the Manchester City utility man.

Delph, 28, overcame three injury-ravaged seasons to become Guardiola's first-choice left-back following the knee problem suffered by Benjamin Mendy in September.

His form, and ability to play in numerous positions, has seen the former Aston Villa midfielder emerge as a strong contender for Southgate's squad.

Southgate visited Guardiola and his English contingent at their training ground on Friday.

Delph won his ninth, and most recent, England cap in November 2015, but Guardiola clearly feels that he should be on the plane to Russia when Southgate finalises the squad.

"Maybe it will be a risk if he doesn't take him to the World Cup," said Guardiola when asked if Southgate would be taking a gamble if he names Delph. I would like to see Fabian at the World Cup because I think he deserves it.

"He is a player who can play in different positions, he helps us to play good football, to be better, to give an extra pass."

"He has a good heart, he is a fantastic person," said Guardiola. "I think he is a guy for the group." Last season, he didn't play but he always helped the team, he was always there.

minutes allowed Juventus draw level before Costa applied Sami Khedira and then Paulo Dybala for two quick goals to seal the victory.

Juventus's six-year reign in Italy looked under great a fortnight ago when Napoli snatched a dramatic 0 win over Massimiliano Allegri's side, but last week's late heroics in Milan left the Turin giant once again in charge of the title race.

Earlier, AC Milan limbed back into the European league places with a 4-1 home win over Verona that consigned the visitors to an immediate return to Italy's second division.
